WHAT IS MONKEYPOX?

Monkeypox is a rare disease caused by the monkeypox virus. It can cause a rash which may look like pimples or blisters, sometimes with a flu-like illness.

WHAT IS MONKEYPOX?

How is Monkeypox spread?

- Direct contact with monkeypox rash, scabs, or body fluids from a person who has monkeypox.
- Touching objects, fabrics (clothing, bedding, or towels), and surfaces that have been used by someone who has monkeypox.
- Contact with respiratory secretions.

This exposure can happen during intimate contact including:

- Oral, anal, and vaginal sex or touching the genitals (penis, testicles, labia, and vagina) or anus (butthole) of a person who has monkeypox.
- Hugging, massage, and kissing.
- Prolonged face-to-face contact.
- Touching fabrics and objects during sex that were used by a person with monkeypox and that have not been disinfected, such as bedding, towels, and sex toys.

WHAT ARE THE SYMPTOMS?

- RASH, BUMPS, OR BLISTERS

  These may appear anywhere on the body, including the genitals or anus. This may look similar to syphilis, herpes, or other common skin rashes.

- FEVER & HEADACHES

- MUSCLE ACHES

- SWOLLEN LYMPH NODES

Symptom onset ranges from 5 - 21 days.

WHAT PEOPLE WHO ARE SEXUALLY ACTIVE NEED TO KNOW ABOUT MONKEYPOX

Having multiple or anonymous sex partners may increase your chances for exposure to monkeypox. Limiting your number of sex partners may reduce the possibility of exposure.

If you or your partner have monkeypox...

- Follow the treatment and prevention recommendations of your health care provider.
- Avoid sex or being intimate with anyone until the rash has healed, scabs have fallen off and you have a fresh layer of skin.

If you have a new or unexplained rash or other symptoms...

- Avoid sex or being intimate with anyone until you have been checked out by a health care provider.
- If you don’t have a health care provider, visit https://vchca.org/agency-divisions/ambulatory-care to find a one near you.
